Clean Up Campaign

With the election all over housewives and men alike can turn their thoughts to beautifying their homes and one of the first which comes to the mind of the publisher is a clean up campaign.

It is of course true that women are forever cleaning up in the home. After batching for a time and having a lady come in and show all the corners where dirt had accumulated we would be the last one to suggest to the ladies to get busy. We have in mind that some of the rooms would stand a coat of paint or fresh wallpaper and that the spring is the opportune time to do this. Your local merchants have some fine suggestions for economical interior decorating.

Then lest the ladies think we are hitting at them we must mention that there are scores of chores for the men folk. The yard needs cleaning up after the accumulation of the winter, there are old cans to move, posts to straighten and a hundred and one little improvements. This is the time to do this. In another few weeks the farmers will be on the land and the village men will also be busy. Don't forget that here too the your local merchant is ready to provide you with implements for cleaning up or suggestions. He will not go out with you like some traveling salesman who sell on the strength of high pressure.

An attractive home whether it be farm or village adds much to the enjoyment of the family and friends who call, and it costs only a few hours, often, to make such a difference in the surroundings.

Proportional Voting

The proportional system of balloting has caused considerable comment on the street and anywhere the election has been discussed. This method may be applied to any slate of three or more candidates. Here is an example taken from the Peoples Weekly explaining the set up in detail as it applies to three candidates in the field, A, B and C.

Lets say the candidates get Number 1 votes as follows; A, 3000, B 2500, C 2000. No candidate has a majority. That means that C is eliminated. The returning officer takes C's ballots and goes through them. Every ballot that is marked 2 for A, is added to A's 3000 and every ballot that is marked 2 for B is added to B's 2500. Suppose 1500 of the people who voted number 1 for C also voted number 2 for B, and 500 of the people who voted number 1 for C, voted number 2 for A. The final count would then be: A 3000 plus 500, or 3500; B, 2500 plus 1500, or 4000. That illustrates, I think, how the thing works. It will be seen that the only second choice votes used are those on the ballots of the people who voted number 1 for C. In single member constituencies second or subsequent choices are only used if and when a candidate is eliminated.
"If any of the persons who voted No. 1 for C, and failed to mark 2 for either A or B, would have deprived themselves of any vote in the final selection of a member. They did not help C because he was eliminated on the first count. The man who votes 1 for a candidate eliminated at the start might as well have stayed home so far as his ballot having anything to do with the final result is concerned."

World Of Wheat

A week or so ago this column referred to an uncommonly good book written by Mme. Tabouis, on the of Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Chaldaea who reigned some 500 yrs BC.

Nebuchadnezzar, Mme. Tabouis tells us, became a great conqueror. He subdued the Kingdoms of Assyria, Duma, the Medes, Jerusalem and of the Jews, and a number of others including Mesopotamia and he obtained control of the lands which opened up into the Mediterranean. Nebuchadnezzar however, held one important principle in mind in all these great conquests, which our statesmen of the modern world, it would seem, might well meditate upon.

Nebuchadnezzar realized that the only way dominion over other lands and over other people could be transferred into wealth and satisfaction for his own people was, as he put it, "By the normal working of economic affairs and not by military supremacy alone", and to bring about this desired result Nebuchadnezzar energetically set himself to work to encourage trade and commerce between the different countries.
